

shipping of a hostile nation. The owners of privateers would try to capture enemy merchant vessels, for which they would receive a reward or 'prize'.

3. Robert Gathorne-Hardy, 'Iter Litorale', Transactions of the Suffolk Naturalist Society, Vol 11, Part 2, pp132, 135.

4. Robert Simper, Rivers Alde, Ore and Blyth, Creekside Publishing, 1994, pp 21, 22 and Bulletin 7, p16 ('Some Orford characters: Alice Underwood').

5. This agent was also responsible for commissioning the ambitious scheme to construct a naval dockyard and harbour around Havergate Island, see Bulletin 9, pp 1-5 ('Lost Opportunity or Lucky Escape').

6. Document in Suffolk Record Office (Ipswich): Temporary deposit number 12146 (EE5).

Sources

Stan Jarvis, Smuggling in East Anglia 1700-1840, Countryside Books, Newbury, 1987.

Richard Cobbold, The History of Margaret Catchpole, 1845, facsimile edition reissued 1979, The Boydell Press, Ipswich

Suffolk Record Office (Ipswich):

George Culham's will, 1797, IC/AA1/217/76

George Culham's inventory, 1797, FE1/31/102

Ipswich Journals dated 22 May 1784, 9 September 1797, 7 October 1797,

10 October 1807, 15 July 1809, 18 September 1813.

Orford burial registers, on fiche.

Boyd's Index to Suffolk Marriages on film, ref. J428.

William Goodwin's diary, HD 365/1

Quarter Sessions, 1809, B105/2/54

Ordnance Survey maps of Havergate Island 1881